ISIS GROUP RECEIVES ORDER FOR ELEVEN D/ESAM 230 AUDIO MIXERS

Taiwanese Broadcaster Chooses Graham-Patten Mixers for New Project

Grass Valley, CA (July 26, 2010) – The ISIS Group has received an order from the Taiwan Broadcasting System (TBS) for eleven Graham-Patten D/ESAM 230 audio mixers. The mixers will be used by the Public Television Service (PTS), a national non-commercial television network that is owned and operated by TBS.

Graham-Patten audio mixers have been the standard of the video post-production industry for more than 20 years. Their architecture and operation is identical to that of a video mixer, and all of their functions are serially controllable using the industry-standard protocol developed by Graham-Patten. In 1991, the company received an Emmy® Award for engineering excellence in development of the first D/ESAM mixers.

“TBS evaluated audio mixers from several other manufacturers,” commented Bob Stillwaugh, president of The ISIS Group. “In the end, they chose Graham-Patten based on the capabilities of the product itself and the company’s reputation for quality and service.”

Graham-Patten Systems, a leading manufacturer of digital audio for video products, is a wholly owned subsidiary of the ISIS Group.
